We can do it when we try

The New Zealand road toll has been a sad testament to our dismal driving habits and skills. Year after year.

Then – suddenly – we stopped being idiots on the road.

OK, one long holiday weekend with just one fatality doesn't constitute a trend. But it does give us hope.

What if we stayed on our best behaviour when we drive?

What if we monitored and policed our own actions?

What if we adopted courtesy as 'our way'?

Let's give it a jolly good try for 30 days. And we all know what happens to any action repeated for 30 days . . .
